Is Hope Village the Right Fit?

At Hope Village, we believe everyone deserves a safe, dignified place to call home. Our community offers permanent supportive housing for people experiencing chronic homelessness who also live with complex medical needs. To help you understand who we serve, here's a quick look at what "medical fragility" means to us — and who fits best in our community.

What "Medical Fragility" Means Here

Medical fragility describes someone whose health is vulnerable and depends on stable housing paired with steady, coordinated support. To thrive at Hope Village, residents must be able to perform all Activities of Daily Living (ADLs) — like bathing, dressing, and moving safely — on their own, while managing one or more ongoing chronic conditions.

What We Can Support

We surround residents with wraparound services designed to help them stabilize, heal, and thrive. Our support includes:

- Chronic disease management through coordination with clinics, doctors, and case managers
- Supportive medical technologies, such as supplemental oxygen, walkers, canes, and wheelchairs
- Benefits navigation — help obtaining federal, state, and local IDs, applying for Social Security, and connecting to community programs

Who Is Not a Fit

Hope Village is a home, not a hospital or nursing facility. To keep everyone safe, we are generally not the right fit for individuals who:

- Need staff assistance with any ADLs
- Require skilled nursing or 24-hour clinical care
- Have severe or unmanaged mental health needs that can't be safely supported here
- Have a history of repeated sexual predation
- Have committed serious violent offenses, such as arson

When someone isn't a fit, our care doesn't stop there. We'll help connect them with other resources in the community.

Let's Find the Right Path Together

Every person and every story matters. If you're a potential resident, family member, or referring provider, we'd love to talk. Connect with the Hope Village team today to start the conversation.
